¹ Ordinary – Construction in which all or part on the interior structural members are wood and the exterior walls are of noncombustible material.

² Fire Resistive – Construction in which structural members are noncombustible and have a specific rated (in hours) fire resistance.

³ Wood Frame – Construction in which the structural members are entirely of wood.

⁴ Special Extinguishing Systems

⁵ Chambers House (Telecommunications) – Sapphire Extinguisher System

⁶ Susan B. Anthony Hall (Danforth) – Kitchen Extinguishing System

⁷ Full Sprinkler System is defined as having sprinklers in both the common areas and individual rooms.

The following additional information on these systems may be helpful to you.

The University has two basic designs of fire alarm systems in its residential housing. For residential housing that has a fire sprinkler system installed as described in the above-referenced summary, smoke detector activation in a student room results in “local” alarm for notification of the room occupants and an electronic signal is automatically sent to the Department of Public Safety (DPS), which can alert the Fire Department.

For residential housing that does not have a fire sprinkler system (University Park and Whipple Park Apartments) a more sophisticated smoke detector is installed which senses heat and smoke separately. Activation of the heat sensor sends a fire alarm signal to DPS. Activation of the smoke sensor sends an alarm signal to DPS but also activates a “local” alarm to alert the room occupants.

The Graduate Maisonettes are equipped with battery operated smoke detectors that will alert the unit occupants only.

Smoke detectors that are located in common spaces (i.e. basements, common hallways) in all buildings, except the Graduate Maisonettes, and all sprinkler system activations in those building equipped with sprinklers, activate the building fire alarm system to alert all occupants and transmit a signal to DPS.
